Do you need solar insurance before installing solar panels?

Installing solar panels is one of the easiest ways to start saving some serious cash on your electricity bills. But, before installing them, it is essential to find out how solar insurance works. After all, you want to be sure that both your home and your solar panel system are properly covered before the solar panels are drilled onto your roof!

What is a dedicated solar panel insurance policy?

A dedicated solar panel insurance policy is designed to provide comprehensive coverage for your solar panel system. It often offers more extensive protection than what is provided by homeowners insurance.

How can I insure my solar panel system?

To insure your solar panel system, you can add endorsements or riders to your existing homeowners insurance policy. Endorsements modify the policy terms to specifically include coverage for your solar panel system.

Are solar panels covered by a separate insurance policy?

Separate insurance policies for solar panels may offer additional benefits, such as coverage for loss of income due to system downtime or the costs associated with temporary replacement power. These added protections could provide financial security in unexpected disruptions to your solar panel system.

Does home insurance cover rooftop solar panels?

Yes, most home insurance policies do cover rooftop solar panels. By installing solar panels you are enabling your house to produce its own electricity. These rooftop solar panels are usually considered a permanent attachment to your property, similar to a patio or a security system and can, therefore, be considered a form of home improvement.

Why do you need solar panel insurance?

It can help you save money on your electricity bills and increase the value of your property. Keep in mind that just like any other investment, your solar panels are vulnerable to damage from various sources, including natural disasters such as hailstorms, and even theft. This is where solar panel insurance comes in.
